

This is what "people to people,
pueblo a pueblo" looks like.

Thank you...
¡Muchismas gracias!

PeaceWorks' 68th Humanitarian Aid Shipment to Nicaragua is on its way!

Tens of thousands of dollars in humanitarian aid donations are now on the way to Puerto Sandino, Nicaragua...and we never could have done it without you. Your contributions covered the $10K in shipping costs. Your material aid donations filled the container. Your volunteer hours got the container prepped and packed. So, de verdad, muchisimas gracias. Our Shipping Coordinator Jim Sagurton reported that we sent nearly 1300 boxes. Here's a breakdown:

A note about Pirates:

...but not the ones on the high seas. 25 students from Seton Hall University came out to help sort and pack boxes for the shipment. In the tradition of Seton Hall's commitment to fellowship and service, the university offers a program called "Service on Saturdays" to give students volunteer opportunities. Go Seton Hall Pirates!!
